

1.5 Human-Environment Interaction

Guided Notes

What is HEI?

Modify:

Examples:

Adapt:

Examples:

Depend:

Examples:

Sustainability:

Cultural Ecology:

Environmental Determinism

Panyee Soccer Team - Examples of Environmental Determinism

Possibilism

The Netherlands - Examples of Possibilism

Name: _____

Period: _____

Practice: Regions: Areas of Unique CharacteristicsPart One: Review/Practice Types of RegionsIdentify each of the following regions as formal, functional (nodal), or vernacular (perceptual)

- 1.) Durham County, NC _____
- 2.) The delivery area of the Jimmy John's I eat at _____
- 3.) The Middle East _____
- 4.) Countries where English is the most common language _____
- 5.) The places where I can still listen to my favorite radio station, 91.5 WUNC _____
- 6.) The Midwest _____
- 7.) Give your own example of a formal region: _____
- 8.) Give your own example of a functional region: _____
- 9.) Give your own example of a vernacular region: _____

Part Two: Cultural Ecology Articles

Each region is comprised of unique cultural and environmental characteristics. The geographic study of human-environment interactions in these diverse regions is known as cultural ecology.

Case Study One Article Title:
Where is it?
What cultural traits are evident?
What physical/environmental traits affect human activity?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of environmental determinism ?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of possibilism ?

Case Study Two Article Title:
Where is it?
What cultural traits are evident?
What physical/environmental traits affect human activity?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of environmental determinism ?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of possibilism ?

Case Study Three Article Title:
Where is it?
What cultural traits are evident?
What physical/environmental traits affect human activity?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of environmental determinism ?
In what ways does this case study demonstrate the idea of possibilism ?	