Reading your Chapter Tips

1. Sit upright with good light. Phone should be away from your immediate reach with notifications turned off.
2. Notice the organization of your chapter and pay attention to important headers/sections - it gives you hint as to what that reading section is all about
3. Pre-read the reading guide questions before you begin reading the section - it can give you some focus
 - a. But remember this: Anything in the chapter is fair game for a quiz question. So just skipping around to answer the question will not get you the depth of understanding you need.
4. Read the section with pen and/or highlighter in hand
- 5) As you read, you want to be thinking/writing - you are having a conversation with the text!
 - Underline/highlight key words and their definitions or take notes on a separate paper (Cornell or outline notes work well)
 - Write in margins notes that help you make sense of the information
 - Don't know a word? Find out what it means and jot down the definition
 - A connection to something you already know that helps make sense of it
 - Put a Question mark if you have a question about a passage
 - Be on the lookout for different types of info. It can help you organize the information.
 - Causes
 - Effects
 - Characteristics/Description
 - CESP
 - Process
 - Pattern
- 6) Read descriptions below images, maps, etc.
- 7) Ask yourself, do I understand what I just read? If not, go back.
- 8) Once you feel good about the section, answer the reading guide questions in complete sentences.

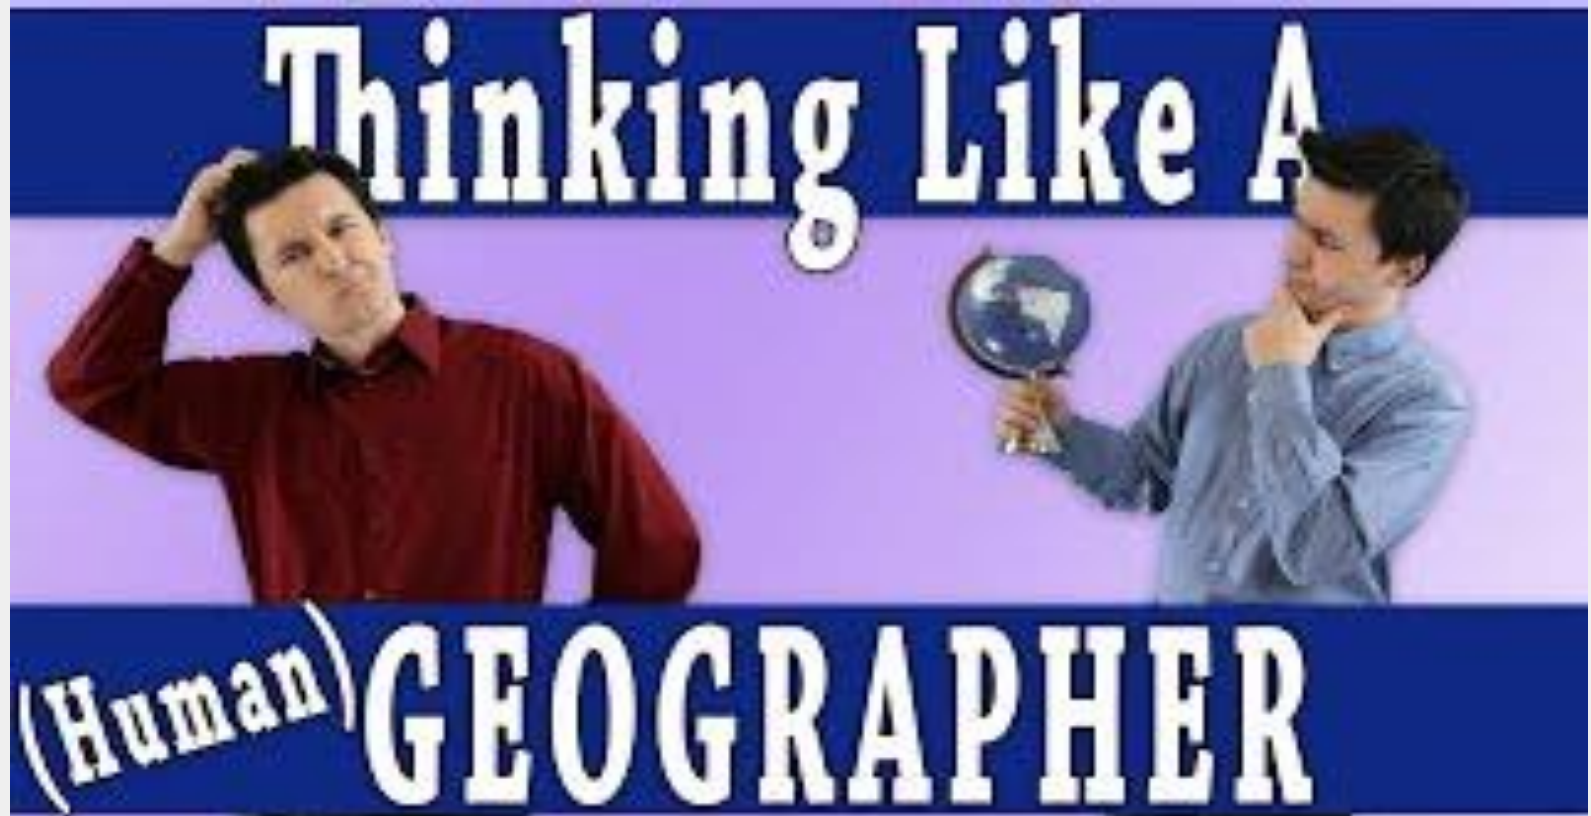

What is Geography?
